The Colorado Department of Motor Vehicles (DMV) administers a two-part driving exam that tests your knowledge and skill behind the wheel. Whether you're a fresh graduate of a high school driver's education program or a seasoned learner with a temporary license, understanding the structure, timing, and expectations of the test can save you time, money, and a few nerves.

Colorado's on-road driving test is designed to evaluate safe vehicle operation under a variety of road conditions. Candidates must first pass a written knowledge test, then schedule an appointment to demonstrate driving proficiency. The test is typically 12-15 minutes long and covers maneuvers such as parking, lane changes, and highway entries, as well as situational awareness like traffic light compliance and proper use of turn signals. Study the Driver's Handbook – The handbook is available online and in print at local DMVs. It includes the most recent rules, signage, and safety guidelines specific to Colorado.
