during absences. When a household plans a multi-week trip, accumulating unattended mail on a porch or in a mailbox signals vulnerability. USPS Mail Hold allows residents to suspend delivery for periods ranging from 3 to 30 days. Requests must be submitted at least one day before the hold begins, though submitting earlier provides a buffer against processing delays. During the hold period, the post office retains all letter-sized mail and packages at the local facility. Upon request resumption, carriers deliver accumulated items on the first day back. This consolidated delivery approach means you won't return to an overstuffed mailbox.
