When evaluating simplicity, the most honest measure is how each platform handles three core tasks: drag-and-drop building, conditional logic, and data export. The table below distills those points. Google Forms â€” Minimalist design but limited conditional branching and no custom styling. JotForm â€” Powerful logic engine, yet settings are scattered across multiple modal windows. For a hobbyist who values quick visual feedback, Ara Formsâ€™ live preview edges out the others, while its export routine keeps data handling as painless as a single download.
